TRUCK PRODUCE IS IN DEMAND

Outside Commission Men Making Inquiries to Open Up Local Markets—Agitation for Big Increase in Home-Grown Produce

Prominence given to the production of Arizona lettuce in the columns of The Republican, has caused eastern marketers to take flattering notice of Salt River valley truck farming. Inquiries about locally grown lettuce have come pouring into the board of trade. Yesterday, a communication was received from the Patterson-Pope company of Dallas, Texas, requesting the names of truck farmers, and more particularly, the address of J. S. Heard of this valley.

It was an article on a splendid lettuce crop raised on the J. S. Heard ranch, that brought forth the inquiries. A movement is being urged to increase the valley's truck products. It has been said that Texas, New Mexico and California farmers are being urged to plant many acres to truck produce, on the theory that Arizona will offer a big field for such material. Arizona farms do not raise enough vegetables to supply the mining and stock growing communities of this state. Large quantities of vegetables and dairy products are now being shipped into the state.

Yet other states are urging commission men to get in touch with Arizona producers, that some of the extra fine truck crops may be diverted to less fortunate situated communities. Arizona produces crops when many other states are snowbound, and that accounts for the demand, says an informant of The Republican.

REGRET AND WELCOME IN BAR RESOLUTIONS

Action Taken by Bar Association on Change of Superior Judges

At a meeting of the Maricopa County Bar association on Saturday, to take action on the retirement from the bench of Superior Judge Phillips, a committee was appointed to draft suitable resolutions. This committee, consisting of Charles E. Ward, J. L. R. Alexander and Lysander Cassidy, yesterday submitted the following report: To the Members of the Maricopa County Bar Association:

Gentlemen: Your committee, appointed to draft resolutions upon the retirement of Judge Phillips from the bench of the superior courts of Maricopa county, Arizona, and the assumption of that position by Judge Stanford, beg leave to report, and recommend the following resolution, to-wit:

Whereas, the Honorable John C. Phillips, after a continuous service as probate judge of Maricopa county, and also as judge of the superior court of Maricopa county, Arizona, is about to step from public to private life, and is being succeeded by the Honorable Rawleigh C. Stanford, and Whereas, the retirement of Judge Phillips, and the assumption of the duties of the office of Judge by Judge Stanford, make a fitting and proper occasion for the expression by this association of its appreciation of the services of Judge Phillips, and the confidence of its members in his successor. Now, therefore, be it resolved, that Judge Phillips, in his long and faithful service as a judicial officer, and in his able and impartial performance of the duties of his several positions, has earned and acquired the esteem and friendship of the members of this association, as well as the good-will and respect of all the citizens of Maricopa county, and

Be it further resolved, that in the resumption by Judge Phillips of the duties of an practicing lawyer, we extend to him the best wishes of the members of this association, and

Be it further resolved, that we congratulate the people of Maricopa county on having secured in Honorable Rawleigh C. Stanford a worthy successor of Judge Phillips, and we pledge ourselves as good citizens and lawyers to co-operate in every honorable way with Judge Stanford, to the end that the administration of justice in his

BAND OF APACHES NOT ON WARPATH

A Peaceful Mission to the San Diego Exposition

The little tribe of traveling Apaches that left here a week ago Sunday, bound for the San Diego exposition, found their new home and job fully up to promises, says E. L. Graves who was their official escort. Mr. Graves returned yesterday morning and says that his trip was a most pleasant one. The Apaches got onto trucks on the train and in the eating houses very quickly and soon after their arrival at the San Diego exposition were at work completing their wickiups on the frames already erected for them.

Graves says that the Indian village installed by the Santa Fe at the exposition covers over six acres of ground and that already over 100 Indians from the Apache, Navajo, Hopi and Sioux tribes have arrived. Besides the hogans of the Navajos, the wickiups of the Apaches, the teepees of the Sioux, there have been reproduced the three story homes of the Hopis and the cliff-dwellings of the Grand Canyon Huastecs. Even the spake-kiva such as has been made famous by the dances at Oraibi has been produced, and there are also two honest-to-goodness trading posts, exactly like those at Canyon or Two Gray Hills on the Navajo reservation. Graves said that when he saw the big corrals, even the posts of which were brought from Arizona, filled with sheep and goats and a few burros, that he could hardly believe that he was not in the Navajo country.

The San Diego exposition grounds are most beautiful and the various groves and flower beds brought to such

LION OF VENICE IS UNIQUE AMONG MOVIES

The city of Venice has long been known as "The Queen of the Adriatic," a city unique among the cities of the world, both for beauty and wealth. Venice was for hundreds of years following the destruction of the Roman empire a free city with its own peculiar government, from which it grew into almost an empire of strength. The fleets of the Venetians were more numerous than those of any nation on earth at the time the city was in the height of its power.

The ruler of the city was elected annually and each year a magnificent ceremony called "the wedding of the Adriatic" was held. All these things are well described in Bulwer Lytton's novel-drama "Rienzi" and it is concerning this family that the story produced for George Kleine in pictures deals.

Six reels were produced in Venice last summer under the title of "The Lion of Venice." In this picture the wonderful canal system of the city is brought out.

The date of the story is set in the fifteenth century, and so great was the attempt to make it realistic that the traffic on one of the great canals was stopped for forty-five minutes to make a scene for the picture. This great picture has been procured for the Lamara theater for today and tomorrow. It is another evidence of the work of Manager Edwards in getting the best for his patrons.

a state of perfection that one is ready to believe that he is in a park many years old. Things are lively in San Diego, with the streets full of heavily loaded vans of materials and exhibits moving toward the fair grounds. After leaving San Diego, Mr. Graves visited friends in Pasadena where he witnessed the Carnival of Roses on January first. This was the fourth time that he had seen it, but it surpassed all others in beauty and interest.

WOMAN'S CLUB IS TO BALLOT TODAY

Annual Election of Officers, and Form Part of This Afternoon's Program

The Woman's club will hold its annual election of officers this afternoon, when the report of the nominating committee will be heard. Serving on this committee are Mrs. Dwight E. Heard, chairman, Mrs. J. Elliot Walker, Mrs. T. W. Pemberton, Mrs. R. A. Fowler and Mrs. H. B. St. Claire.

Every member is asked to wear her visiting card or a placard bearing her name, but the why or wherefore will remain a mystery until the doors of the auditorium are thrown open. Mrs. H. B. St. Claire is to sing a group of songs and at the conclusion of her number, tea will be served.
